Foreword: House Rules

These characters are created using the D&D Core Rules, but with also some house rules; these house rules don't change drastically the characters, anyway, and some of them are widely used in the gaming community (such as skill focus giving a +3 bonus instead of +2).

I've summarized these house rules here so that you can either use them or revert the characters to the standard rule set.

Races

Half Elves: half elves receive +1 bonus skill point at every level (x4 at level 1), as humans do.

Elves: instead of choosing between longsword or rapier, all elves are proficient in the elven lightsword.

Classes

Bards: bards receive 6 skill points every level instead of just 4

Rangers: rangers can choose between having Ambidexterity and Two Weapon Fighting at level 1 (Northern Rangers) or having Point Blank shot at level 1 and Far shot at level 2 (Archer Rangers). They also receive Fast Movement (as the Barbarian) at level 4.

Druids: druids can use (and are proficient in) all simple and martial weapons excluding: hammers, maces, flails, picks, polearms (except the long spear) and crossbows. They are still limited to natural armor.

Feats

Cross Class Learning: (from NetBook of Feats) choose two cross class skills. They become class skills for you.

Double Weapon Fighting: (from NetBook of Feats) choose one double weapon you are proficient. You can fight with that weapon as if you had both Two Weapon Fighting and Ambidexterity.

Education: (from FRCS) +1 to two knowledge skills, and all knowledge skills are always class skills. Must be taken at character level 1.

Talented: (new) gives a +2 (aptitude) bonus to two related skills. Replaces Alertness and similar feats.

Skill focus: (changed) gives a +3 (competence) bonus to one skill.

Equipment

Crossbow (all): shooting with an already loaded crossbow does not provoke an attack of opportunity

Hand crossbow: same as PHB except damage 1d6

Heavy crossbow: same as PHB except damage 2d6, critical 20/x3.

Elven lightsword: this thin sword is exactly like a rapier (damage 1d6, 18-20/x2, medium, finessable) except that is exotic (but elves gain proficiency in it) and that can do also slicing damage. Price is 50gp.

Divine Spells and Domains

Instead of listing the gods worshipped by the clerics, only the domains are stated. Some domains come from other sources (and are slightly changed) but all the spells used here are from the Player's Handbook.

In a specific campaign the character can choose the deity from the domains (most of the pantheons include lots of possibilities)

Charm Domain: (from FRCS, changed) 1/day you can boost your charisma score by 4 points for one minute.
